THE DEVIL ON WHEELS

KIKE IBÁÑEZ

NEW TITLE!

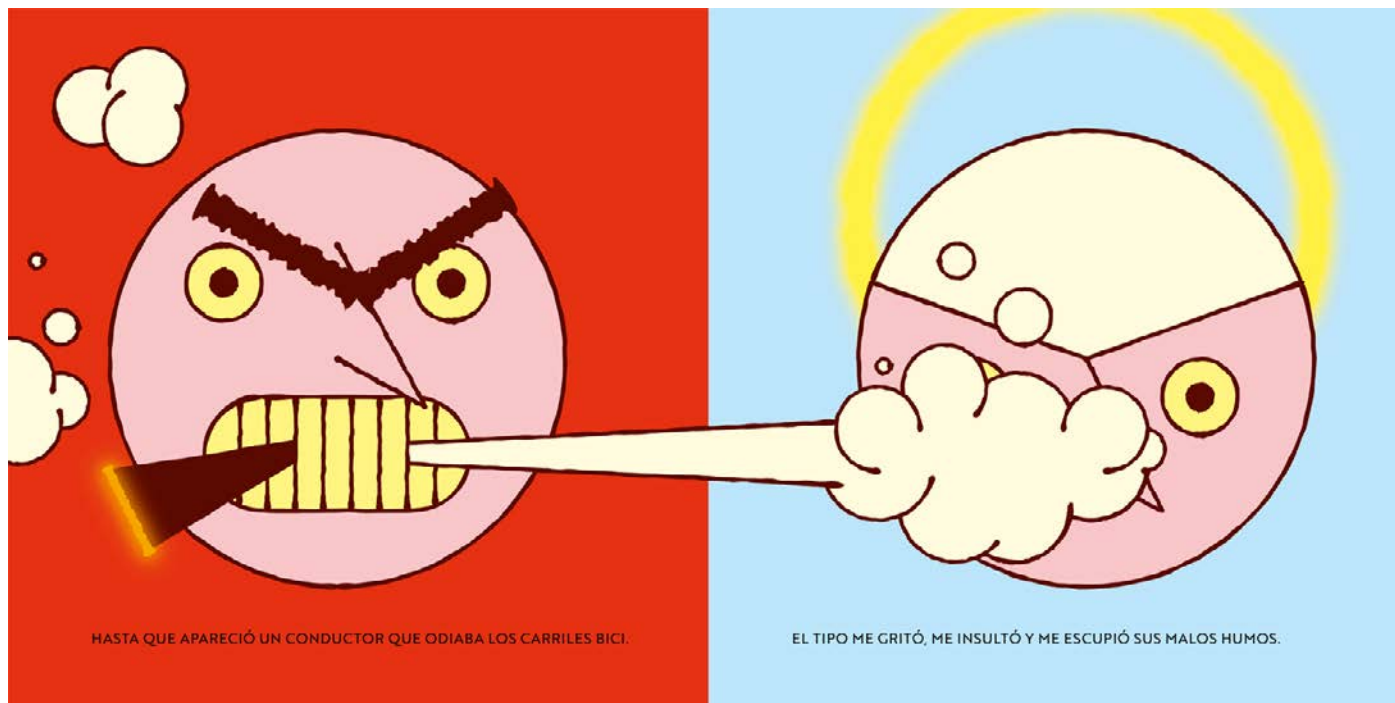

It all started the day Lucía Fernanda went to the carnival party. She wanted to ride her bike, but her mother wouldn't let her. Lucía Fernanda is a smart and fearless girl who is crazy about her bike. Does she have a problem? Lucia Fernanda doesn't know what patience means, especially if city traffic prevents her from getting to the carnival party on time. And if a van loaded with dangerously radioactive merchandise is about to crash into her and her mother... You can't imagine the pandemonium she is capable of unleashing.

SOME THINGS...

JUAN SENÍS, text

CARMEN SEGOVIA, illustrations

NEW TITLE!

There are infinite types of families, as many as there are human beings on the planet. There are large families, singleparent, one-person households, or LGBT families. The one in the book you're holding is an adoptive family. At first glance, all these families may seem very different but, if we look closely, there is something that unites them. Have you noticed it too? With simple and extremely precise words, Juan Senís invites us to observe the life that unfolds around us, embracing it in all its diversity. Carmen Segovia gives life, light and color to these words through characters that go straight to the soul of each reader.

THE GENEROUS PATH

MARTA COMÍN

NEW TITLE!

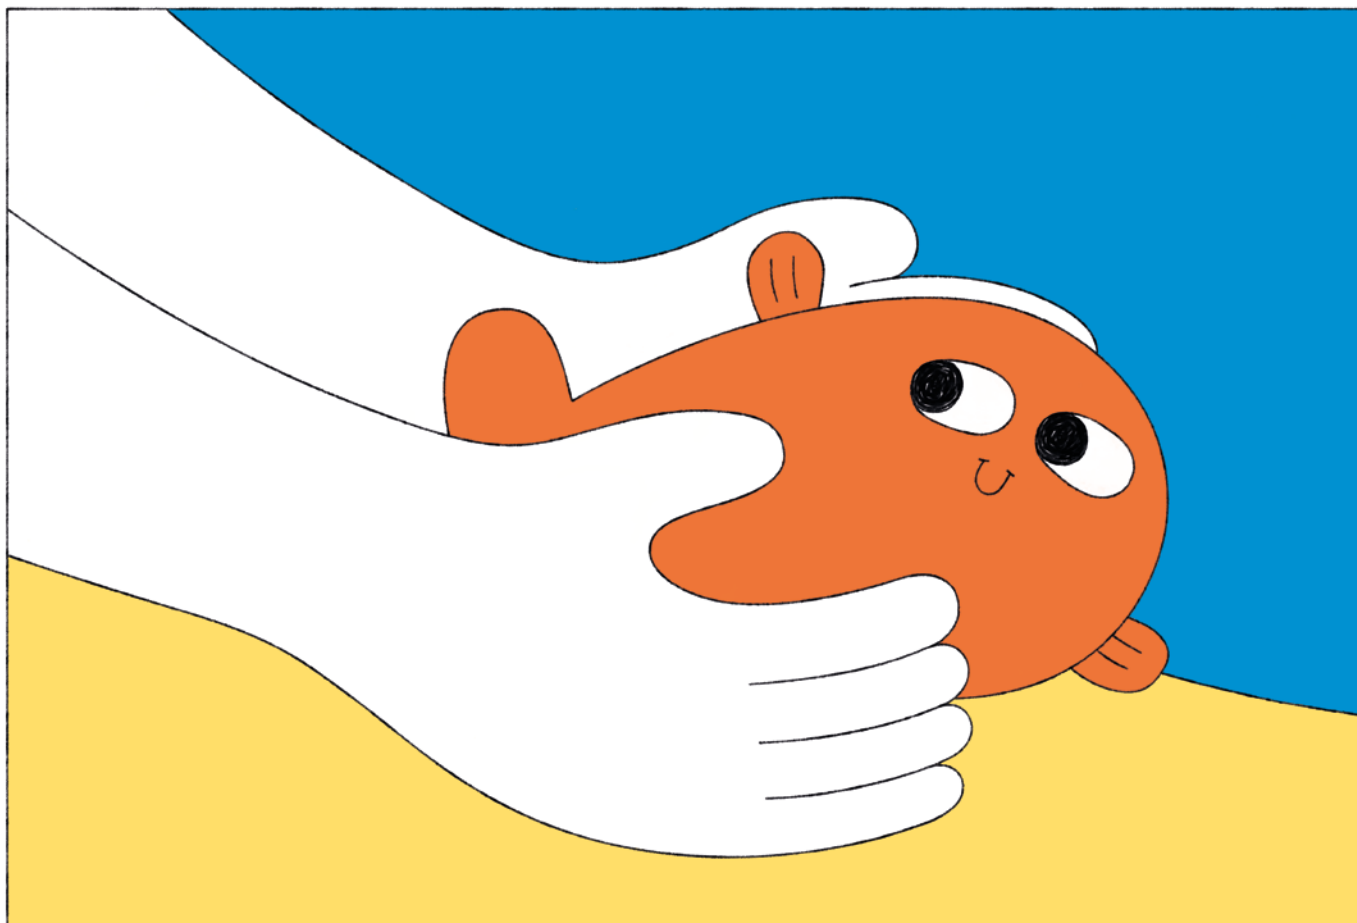

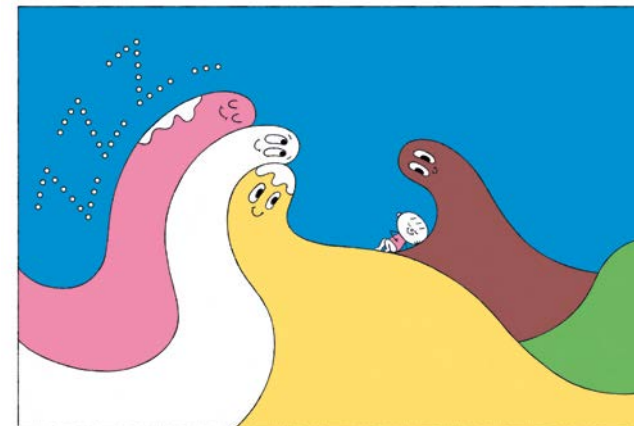

When we come into the world, what do we need? To eat, to play, to sleep; we need shelter, protection and love. The protagonist of this book has it all. When the child begins his journey, the world listens to him and does its best to give him everything he needs. If he is hungry, the trees bend down to offer him their fruits; if he wants to play, the clouds change their shape to entertain him; if he wants to sleep, the mountains tuck him in until he begins to dream. Suddenly, one day it is the world that calls him. Will the child be able to listen to it?

In this book Marta Comín traces an amazing journey and proposes a delightful reflection on the meaning of generosity.

OTTO AND SPIKEY

UXUE JUÁREZ, text

NEUS CAAMAÑO, illustrations

NEW TITLE!

At school the teacher has given a cactus to each student –and also to Otto and to his friend Arlet. Arlet’s cactus has an orange flower, but Otto’s has none. Throughout this endearing story steeped in a sweet sense of humor, Otto will do everything he can to make sure his cactus is happy and blooms with the most beautiful flower imaginable. He may have no choice but to hug Spikey, his cactus... Will that be as dangerous as the adults say? A book that, with intelligence and poetry, explores a feeling like empathy, the desire to feel understood and the fortune of having good friends.

IGAPÓ. WHAT DO THE COATIS WANT?

PATO MENA

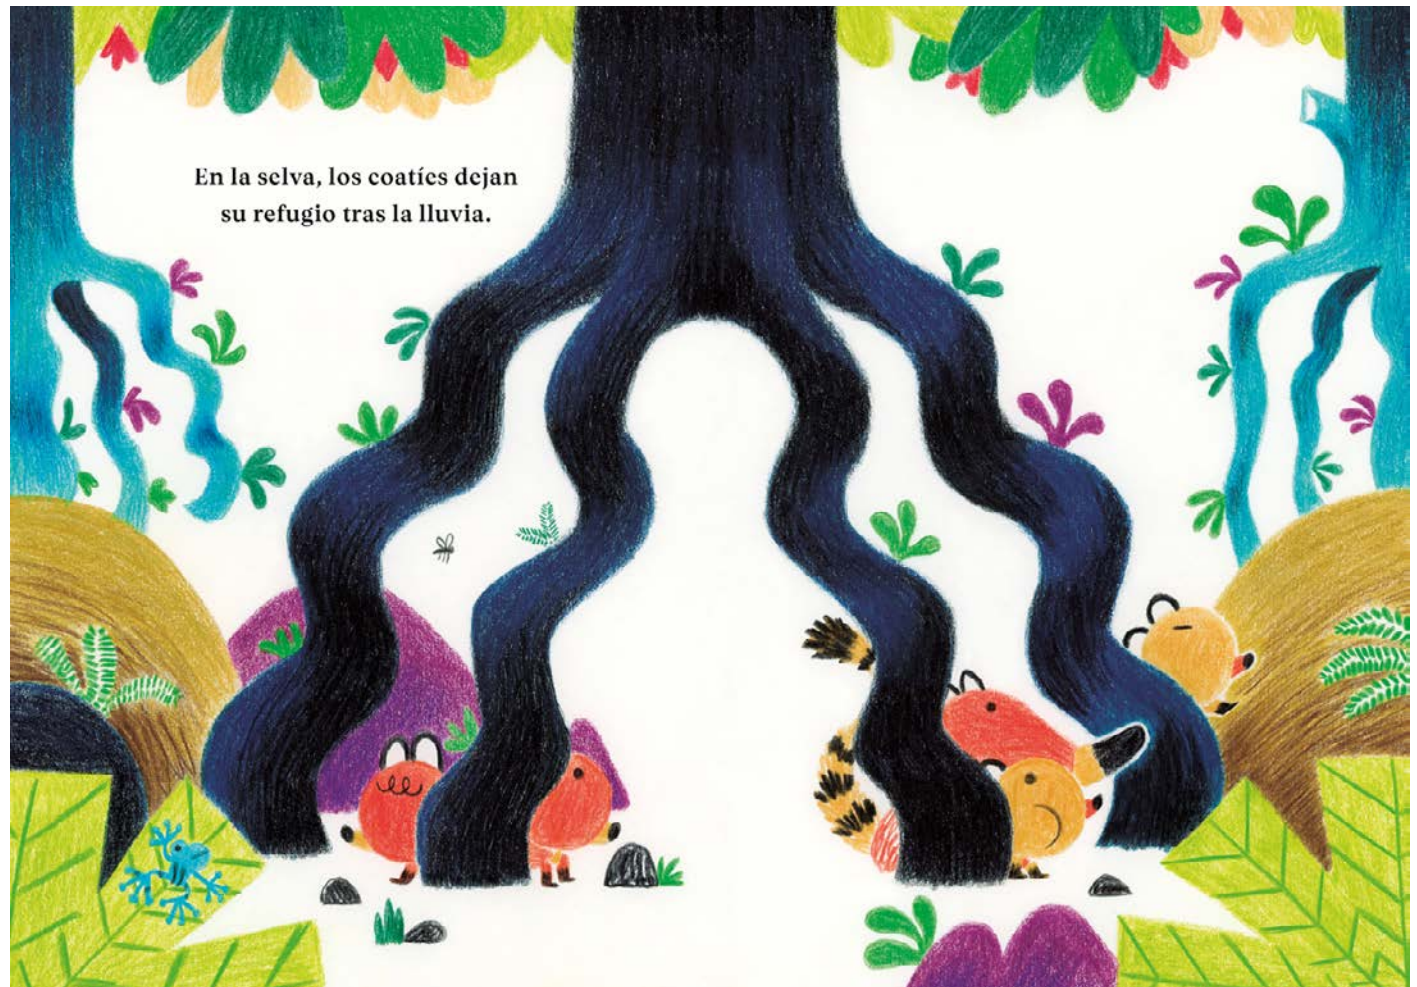

NEW TITLE!

Mama Coati and her mischievous cubs are walking through the jungle. Suddenly, the little ones vanish. Will Mama Coati be able to remember what each of them wanted and find them before dinner? To do so, she will have to interpret the signs shown by each one of them. She will be helped by her imagination and, towards the end, also by the mothers of the coati community who gather with their young at the foot of the waterfall. Pato Mena, after Onsen and Atacama, returns with a book inviting his readers to an amusing game of pictograms while introducing them to a specific ecosystem: the flooded jungles of Brazil, which in Tupi-Guarani are called 'igapó'.

MOTH HAS A BALL

ELVIRA H. MATEU, text

MAR HERNÁNDEZ, illustrations

NEW TITLE!

This book tells the adventures of a moth that every night goes out to play with her ball. Of course, this ball is the moon. And the games they play give shape to the lunar phases. This story, which aims to bring the general public and children in particular closer to the cycles and rhythms of nature, ends with two pages where the reader can learn more about the lunar phases and also some characteristics about moths. A poetic text and illustrations of great graphic strength give life to a wonderful little book that invites us to enter into the mysteries of nature at night under the guidance of a tireless moth.

NO

PAULA CARBONELL, text

ISIDRO FERRER, illustrations

NEW TITLE!

No tells the story of two brethren, a boy and a girl. She is the one narrating it with few laconic words expressing the hardship and the destruction that falls on any individual trapped in a place that has just been invaded. Isidro Ferrer illustrates this book using wooden pieces to create an unadorned and strong visual language, playing with few elements: such as a ladder and a hole in the ground that keeps getting bigger. People try to look into it, to live around it, and sometimes they fall inside of it, never to come back. The world has stopped making sense, people are pushed to play hide-and-seek around a bottomless hole that keeps growing. War has broken out.

UN RAMO DE MALAS HIERBAS A BOUQUET OF WILD FLOWERS

ALEX NOGUÉS, text
MARÍA PASCUAL DE LA TORRE, illustrations

NEW TITLE!

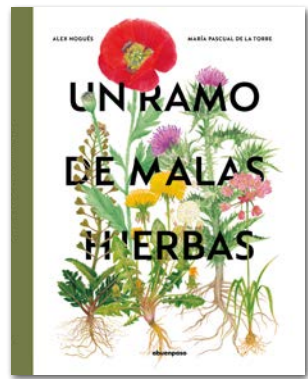

This bouquet of wild flowers takes shape page by page in the hands of the author of the book, as he goes for a walk observing and collecting wild plants while he tells us about their history, properties and uses. We will discover for instance why bees love borage and also learn about the carnivorous habits of the seeds of the plant called shepherd's purse. Then we will make a tea with hedge mustard to soothe our voice, or a solar infusion with the flowers of the elder tree. The illustrations present each element of each plant with beauty, precision, but also sense of humor. A Bouquet of Wild Flowers is a book to return to again and again for information, poetry and also for fun.

Entre tanto verde, me topo con los largos tallos secos aún en pie de una planta que creció el año pasado. Los esqueletos de sus antiguas flores dibujan constelaciones en el aire. A los pies de estos tallos, aparecen plumones de color verde oscuro. Es el hinojo; nuevo y viejo al mismo tiempo. A las plantas que crecen durante varios años seguidos (más de dos) en un mismo lugar, se las llama «plantas vivaces».

Vivaz. Muere en invierno y renace en primavera.

NEW TITLE!

What do you see from your bedroom window, or from the window of a car or a train? And how many windows do you look out of every day? Dani Espresate has set out to look out from common and not so common windows. Each one offers a peculiar, surreal, happy, and also melancholic vision of the world, and Dani tells us about it in this collection of poems where he offers the reader games and rhythms based on different poetic forms. A surprising book inviting the reader to guess from which window the author is speaking to us in each case, and to be enthralled by Marta Comín's brilliant illustrations as they masterfully play with concepts, colors and spaces.

¡ELEFANTE A LA VISTA! ELEPHANT IN SIGHT

JUAN ARJONA, text
GIOVANNI COLANERI, illustrations

NEW TITLE!

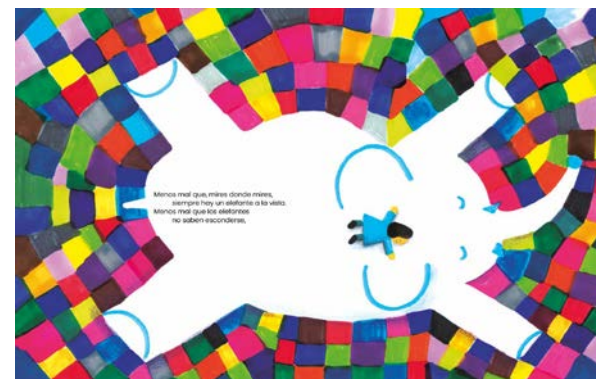

Elephants have many positive qualities: for example, they do not know how to hide and this is why, if we look care fully, we can always find an elephant in our midst. Even at night. This is what Juan Arjona explains to us with a poem that presents a series of sweet, dreamlike, surprising and amusing situations. Giovanni Colaneri illustrates the book with a casual and free-flowing style that turns each page into an ode to the imagination and an invitation to look for all the elephants that the illustrator has hidden therein. The book is accompanied by an incredible artefact: a mid-distance elephant finder.

POETAS POETS

FERNANDO VÁZQUEZ, text and illustrations

NEW TITLE!

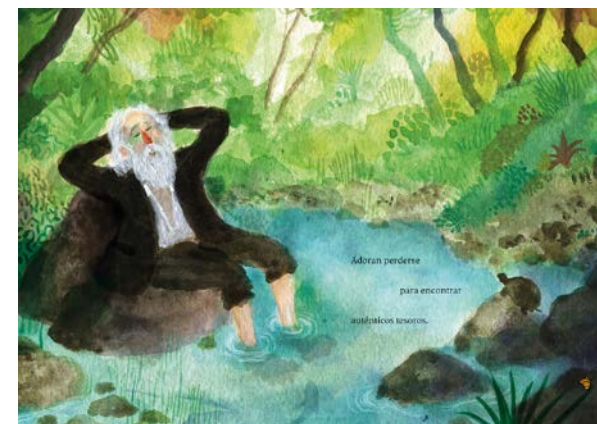

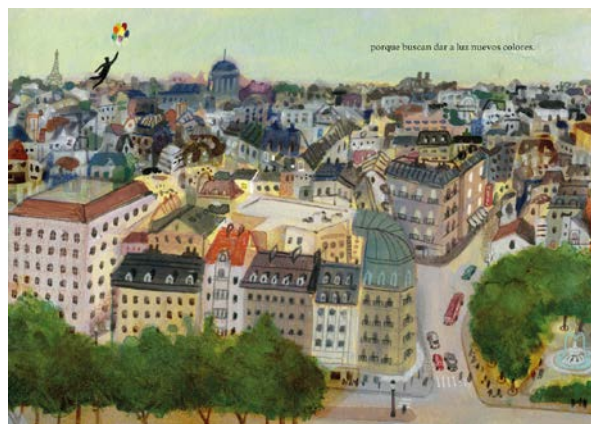

Inspired by some poems and poets, such as Rimbaud, Emily Dickinson, Walt Whitman, Sylvia Path and a few more names, Fernando Vázquez invites us to enter the world of poetry in search of its secret. Writing verses is not enough to be a poet, but curiosity, silence and time to explore, the desire to play and experiment with the five senses – like in childhood – are also needed. And, just as if he were a child, Fernando Vázquez plays in turn, including in this group an apparent intruder whose presence will be revealed at the end. There the reader will find the names of the poets and poems that inspired its pages.

NEW TITLE!

Silke lives in Börr, a city where cold and snow reign during winter. At school she never knows what to say – she chokes on the words when speaking. That’s why her classmates laugh at her and call her “the crane.” Then she looks for the company of the animals that come to the playground. But everything changes after the first snowfall when, inspired by the lesson of her teacher about igloos, Silke comes up with a plan that not only will change her life, but also the whole school. The words and the illustrations of this book come together to accompany readers on a magical journey to the slow rhythm of falling snowflakes.

STORIES AT A GOOD PACE

MAR BENEGAS, text

SIMONE REA, illustrations

In the forest there lives the mice family. There are shells, rabbits and a cute monster. There is also an inventor dog and a Poet Bird. But, in addition, there's Bruno the Stork, who can't migrate and lives there. He writes and tells the stories that happen every day. Life in the forest is calm and friendly, but at the same time it is full of adventures. If you let yourself be guided by Bruno and enter the forest, you will discover who the guardians of the seasons are and you will meet a Yellow Toad that one day wanted to see the sea. In the 16 stories written by Mar Benegas, the lives of the inhabitants of the forest are intertwined, while Simone Rea's brushes create a wonderful portrait for each one of them.

BOOKISH BOOK

JUAN ARJONA, text

ENRIQUE QUEVEDO, illustrations

In this book the writer and storyteller Juan Arjona tells the tale of a leonine lion who spends his day in the middle of the desert sighing sighs and waiting for time to pass. But what if the life of this leonine lion could be different? Could the leonine lion be transformed into a looney lion? And the deserted desert, in a jungled jungle? Juan Arjona explains that he wrote this story by accompanying each name that appears in it with a complement that has a similar meaning. He calls this game «redundant redundancy». The illustrations by Enrique Quevedo play Juan Arjona's game, introducing a whole series of details, objects and characters that will surprise the reader of this original and witty story.

DIARY OF BREAKFASTS

ALICIA BULULÚ, text

RAQUEL CATALINA, illustrations

There are as many breakfasts as there are days a year. Each breakfast has a special taste and corresponds to a certain state of mind. Because drinking a glass of milk under a blossoming almond tree is not the same as drinking that same glass of milk at full speed because otherwise you will miss the bus. The protagonist of this book is a girl called Violeta. As we read aloud the poems that describe her awakenings, in the illustrations we will see what her family is like, what characters enter and leave her life, what worries her and what makes her happy. Raquel Catalina's fascinating illustrations give the book a narrative sequence and enliven each morning and each character with inexhaustible vitality.

The viscachas are friendly rodents that live in the Atacama desert and love to bask in the sun together as a family. They are always attentive to what the big viscacha –that watches over them– indicates so that they are all safe from the animals and the calamities that inhabit the impressive desert landscapes. When night falls, it will be the youngest in the family that will notice the gift that the desert offers them at the end of the day. Just as he already did in Onsen. What are the monkeys doing?, Pato Mena plays with words, illustrations and pictograms to tell a story that will arouse the curiosity of all his readers.

DECUR, illustrations

The wall builder has found the perfect place, a clearing in the forest where vegetation grows abundant, the air is fresh and clean, and a river flows. The wall builder decides to stay, but little by little the inhabitants of that place appear: a dog, a wild boar, a cat, a bird... Their arrival enrages the wall builder, who is not willing to share his perfect place with anyone and who will react in the only way he knows. Decur's illustrations bring to life a fascinating world populated by cute animals, while turning the wall builder him-self into an endearing character who can still be redeemed. A fable that talks of nature, people and our relationship with the world we inhabit and of which we are a part.

EL BOSQUE ES NUESTRA CASA THE FOREST IS OUR HOME

SARA FERNÁNDEZ, text and illustrations
SONIA ROIG, text

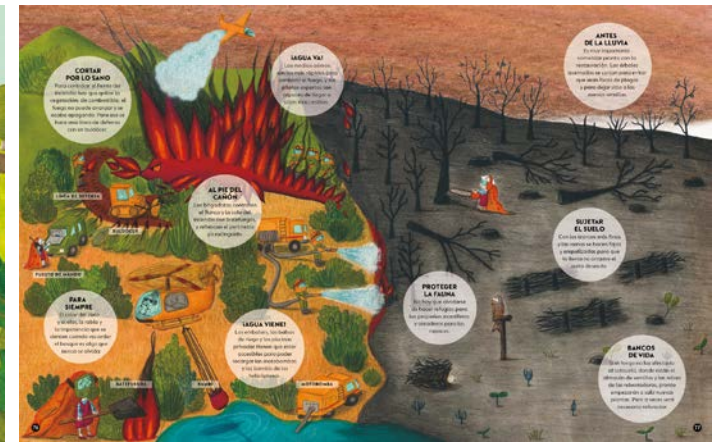

El bosque es nuestra casa (The forest is our home) opens the door for us to learn about forests, how they work and about their natural cycles with a scientific and ecological approach. But also to understand our past relationship with them and the importance they have in our day-to-day. This book is, now more than ever, necessary to understand that we need to have a future next to the forests and what we can do so that they continue to take care of us and give us so much without putting them in danger. In this book –written and illustrated by two forest engineers–, every detail, every leaf, every tree drawn has a specific function.

Todo empieza cuando las rocas, que parecen tan duras, se disgregan por la lluvia, se rompen por el hielo y empiezan a ser colonizadas por seres vivos muy pequeños. Bacterias, líquenes, musgos, hongos y otros microorganismos liberan sustancias químicas que atacan las rocas. Y, al morir, sus restos se convierten en materia orgánica.

PASITO A PASITO

Hay semillas capaces de germinar sobre muy poca cantidad de materia orgánica. Estas nuevas plantas son la comida de otros seres que a su vez son el alimento de otros más grandes... Cada vez hay más excrementos y restos de animales y plantas que se incorporan al suelo, y más sustancias químicas que siguen atacando la roca madre.

MUCHO MÁS QUE TIERRA

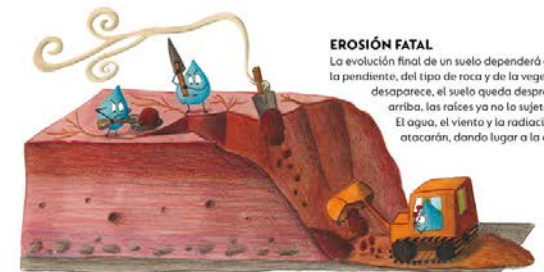

Cuando el espesor de materia orgánica y de roca disgregada es suficiente, pueden habitarlo plantas cada vez más grandes. Estas contribuyen a que el suelo sea aún más profundo y a que se almacene y recicle más agua, nutrientes y carbono. Hay más espacio y recursos para más seres vivos. Pero a las plantas y los animales les pasa igual que a nosotros, no a todos nos gustan las mismas cosas. Dependiendo del tipo de suelo, vivirán unas u otras especies.

UNA DESPENSA PERFECTA

Un suelo desarrollado parece una tarta esponjosa. En la capa superior está la mayor parte de los animales, así como materia orgánica, carbono y nutrientes. En la siguiente, que es más espesa, es donde más agua se puede almacenar. Pero es la capa más profunda la que casi nunca se seca. Y aunque allí encontramos muchas piedras, las raíces de los árboles siguen haciendo crecer al suelo por debajo.

CUANTOS MÁS, MEJOR
(Una especie de cada cuatro vive en el suelo! En un solo gramo de suelo podemos encontrar miles de bacterias, hongos, gusanos, lombrices, insectos, ácaros, ciempiés y otros microorganismos.)

EROSIÓN FATAL

La evolución final de un suelo dependerá del clima, de la pendiente, del tipo de roca y de la vegetación. Si esta desaparece, el suelo queda desprotegido por arriba, las raíces ya no lo sujetan por debajo. El agua, el viento y la radiación solar lo atacarán, dando lugar a la erosión.

LA NIETAS DE BABA BABA'S GRANDDAUGHTERS

INA HRISTOVA, text and illustrations

Old Baba lives alone in a little house in the forest at the top of the mountain. One day, inadvertently, she wakes up from his deep nap the hungry wolf, who threatens to eat her. To save herself, Baba proposes him a deal: claiming that her old flesh is too tough to eat, she invites him to come to her home in the evening. There he will find her three granddaughters and he will be allowed to choose one of them. This folk tale, starring the ancient figure of Babayaga –an old woman, a witch, perhaps even Mother Nature– comes from Bulgaria. In it, cunning meets brute force and the outcome comes to life through a delightful linguistic and metaphorical game.

ONSEN. ¿QUÉ HACEN LOS MONOS? ONSEN. WHAT ARE THE MONKEYS DOING?

PATO MENA, text and illustrations

The protagonists of this book are monkeys that live at the top of a snowy mountain and seek warmth in its hot springs. The reader will be able to accompany them throughout their day, while they take care of everything that, whether monkey or human, is needed: eating, cleaning, sleeping and... playing! Yes, for these monkeys playing is very important. Pato Mena has not only created characters with whom to empathize immediately, but also presents the reader with a linguistic game, introducing each need of the monkeys through pictograms. Some will be easy to guess; others, not so much. A cute, fun and bright book that will awaken the minds and curiosity of young readers.

ENCICLOPEDIA VISUAL DE LOS SONIDOS VISUAL ENCYCLOPEDIA OF SOUNDS

ISIDRO FERRER, text and illustrations

During the confinement in the spring of 2020 brought about by the coronavirus pandemic, Isidro Ferrer was impressed by the silence he suddenly found himself surrounded by. Once the usual sounds of the city were no longer present, an amazing number of small sounds took over, acquiring a volume unknown until that moment. Isidro Ferrer listened to those new sounds and translated them visually. In the pages of this thought-provoking book, the reader will learn many curious facts about the perception, reproduction and translation of sounds, and he or she will find a practical guide of original techniques and materials to visually and beautifully translate sounds onto paper.

ANÍBAL. PERRO FANTASMA HANNIBAL. GHOST DOG

JOAQUÍN CAMP, text and illustrations

Throughout the pages of this book, Hannibal presents us with the joys and difficulties of his new life as a ghost dog. Now he can steal food in the park without anyone seeing him, he has learned to fly and he is happy, almost always. Because there are things, like a secret love, that cannot be forgotten. And Hannibal had a very special love. Will they ever meet again? This book exudes a great sense of humor in every scene starring Hannibal, while each illustration creates an ironic counterpoint to the text. The good humor and optimism of this dog accompany him and the reader throughout the big and small joys and misadventures that await us every day.

ZUM ZUM. EL VIAJE DE LA SEMILLA ZUM ZUM. THE JOURNEY OF THE SEED

MARÍA JOSÉ FERRADA, text
MARCO PASCHETTA, illustrations

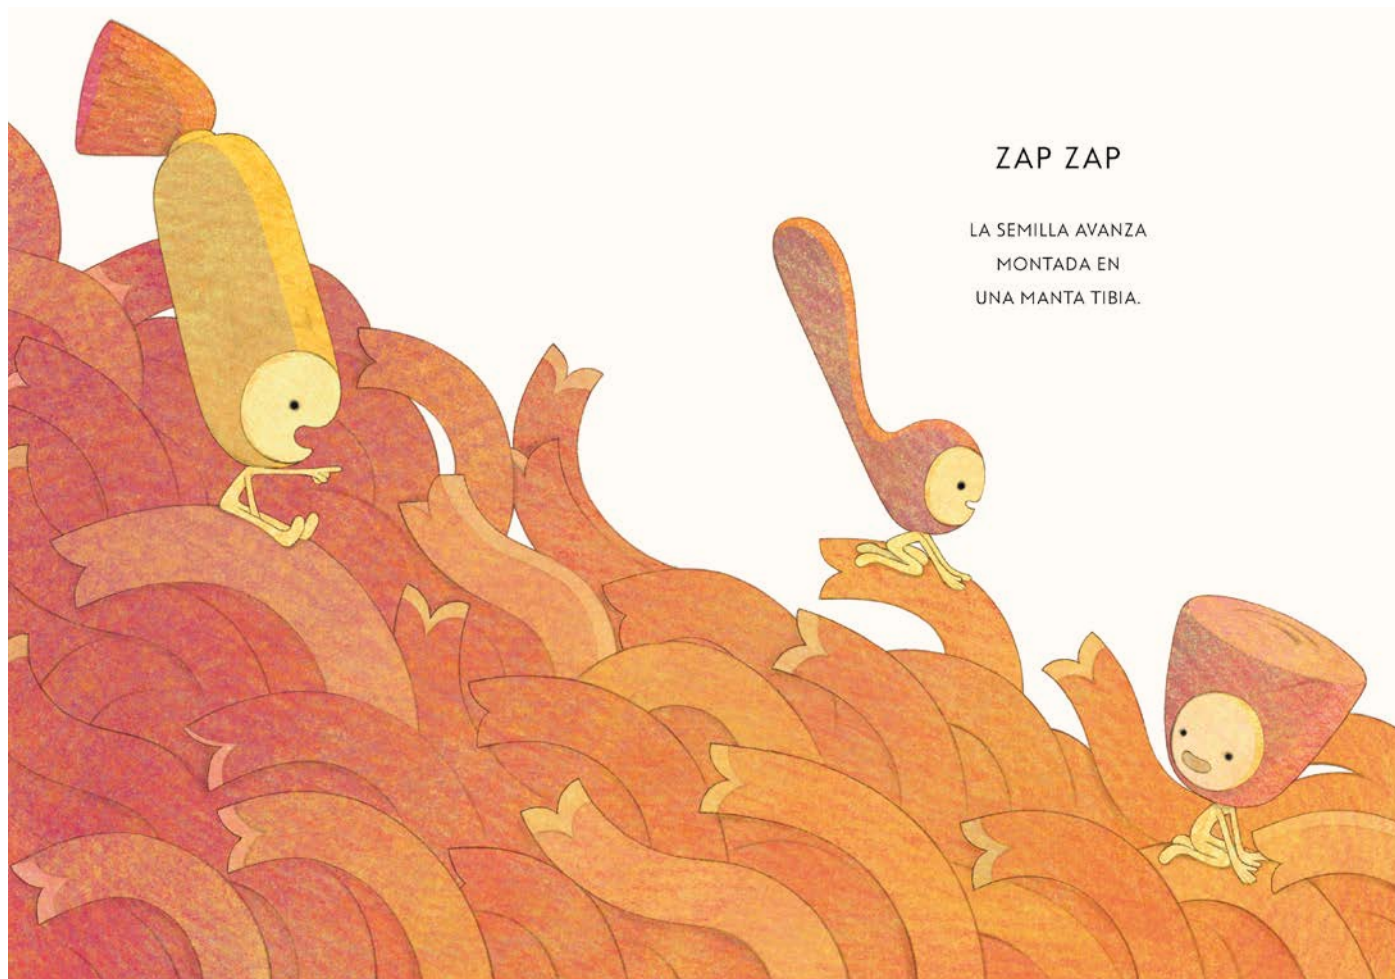

María José Ferrada and Marco Paschetta tell a story that has always accompanied us: the journey of the seed that travels lightly from the plant where it was born until it finds the perfect place to lie down to sleep and sprout. They do so with the lightness of a seed, with a text buzzing with onomatopoeias and introducing a group of friendly, curious and faithful characters. They all accompany the seed on its journey: some animals, like the cat and the dog; the elements, like the sun, the wind and the rain; and a boy and a girl devoted to carefully observing the world around them.

BIENVENIDA WELCOME

MARTA COMÍN, text and illustrations

Welcome is a small object book that celebrates the arrival of a new baby. Hidden in its pages there are 7 animals asking to be discovered. Just as the baby has been born into the world, the animals will be born before the reader's eyes by unfolding the paper tabs on each page.

When we open each spread, all we see at first on the right is a white page, but step by step it takes the shape of a turtle, a mouse, a rabbit, a duck, an elephant, a frog or a bird. A tender poem accompanies the appearance of each animal: eight verses that invite you to gently caress the baby's little head, nose, eyes, ears, mouth, feet, hands.

MIL TOMATES Y UNA RANA. A THOUSAND TOMATOES AND A FROG

ALEX NOGUÉS, text
SAMUEL CASTAÑO, illustrations

NEW TITLE!

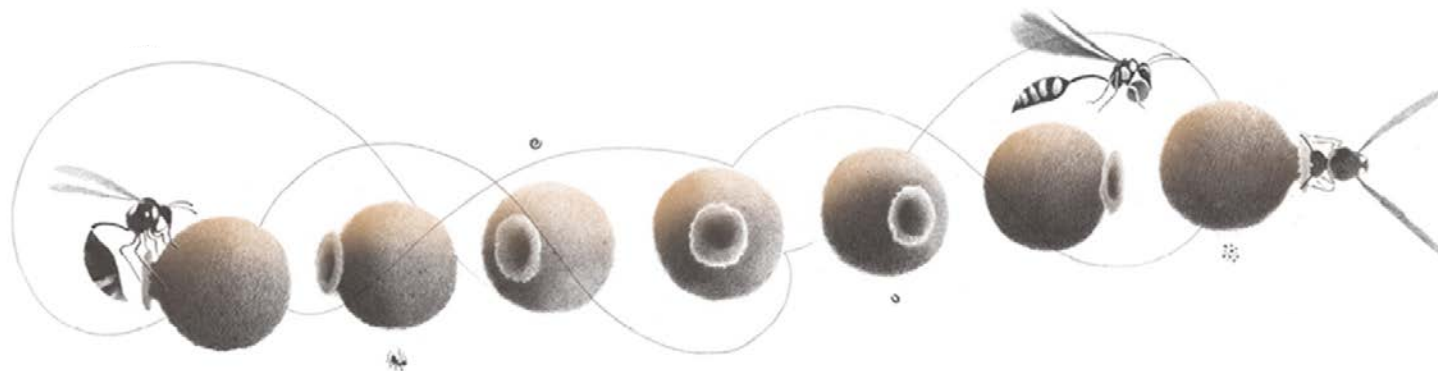

Some time ago the author of this book and his family decided to plant a vegetable garden. It was just one square meter big. Nonetheless, it thrived over the course of a year, during which it gave the author and his family more than a thousand tomatoes, brought them the company of a frog and allowed them to collect a bunch of observations and thoughts on nature that have become this book. Throughout the pages of this book, the reader will be able to think about the force of life that always finds its way to begin all over again; and most of all the reader will be astonished to learn about nature's balance. This book is a quiet chant to nature and to how the life is reborn again after again.

Semana 50

Hago mis cálculos. Hemos cosechado unos once kilogramos de tomates cherry. Cada tomate pesa unos diez gramos de promedio. ¡En total, unos mil cien tomates! Cada tomate alberga del orden de veinte a veinticinco semillas. Supongamos que quince de ellas son fértiles. Si plantáramos las dieciséis mil quinientas semillas de nuestra cosecha, y teniendo en cuenta que nuestras tres tomaeras asilvestradas ocupan medio metro cuadrado, necesitaríamos 2.750 metros cuadrados de terreno. ¡Casi la tercera parte de un campo de fútbol!

Y si repitiéramos el proceso al año siguiente, necesitaríamos más de 1.300 campos de fútbol completos.

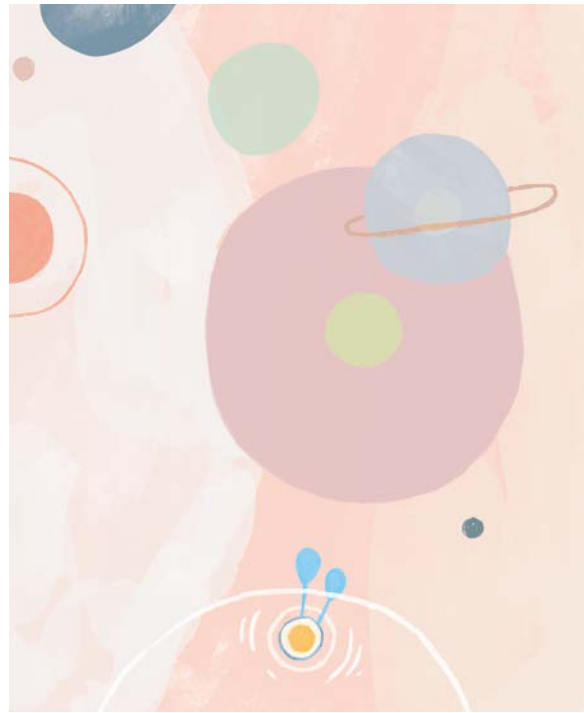

¿QUÉ PASÓ EN AQUELLOS NUEVE MESES? WHAT HAPPENED IN THOSE NINE MONTHS?

ESPERANZA ORTEGA, text
ANA SUÁREZ, illustrations

A book that, with tender images, tells of the fascinating process through which a silent and pulsating little dot becomes that creature that breaks into tears when it leaves its mother's body.

Esperanza Ortega's poems play with calligrams, sounds and delicate metaphors. The illustrations by Ana Suárez are both evocative and poetic and at the same time precise. They perfectly accompany each stage of this journey. At the end of the book, an infographic compiles the most important changes that take place each month of pregnancy.

LA BELLEZA DEL FINAL THE BEAUTY OF THE END

ALFREDO COLELLA, text
JORGE GONZÁLEZ, illustrations

Nina, the turtle, is one hundred years old and she decides to discover the meaning of the end, because she likes to understand things. So she embarks on a journey that will take her to meet the ant and the caterpillar the swallow and the nightingale, the snake and the river.

Thus, moving one step a time, this books reminds us that, even if it's true that things end -love, friendship, life-, nonetheless there may be beauty in the end.

That same beauty exudes from the illustrations of Jorge González, their plastic strength speaks of nature, life and their nuances. They fit perfectly Alfredo Colella's words that can be read like an ancient myth.

CERDITO, ¿ADÓNDE VAS? WHERE ARE YOU GOING, PIGLET?

JUAN ARJONA, text

XIMO ABADÍA, illustrations

During his morning walk, Piglet meets the farmer, the butcher, the knight, the mayor, and even the king. They all ask him where is going, but Piglet tells them he is not going anywhere, in fact he is coming back... Yes, he has just saved what's most important to each one of them. And, according to Piglet, it all happened last night. How can that be possible? How could Piglet be at the same time in so many places? Is this the story of a lying Piglet? Well, the reader will have to read the story, consider the different points of view, and decide by him or herself, while Piglet is happily taking a nap. A bright and funny story, told with the typical brio of Juan Arjona's prose and Ximo Abadía's illustrations.

CONTAR STORYTELLING

PEP BRUNO, text
ANDREA ANTINORI, illustrations

Where would you go to look for a good story to tell? How would you prepare it? Which is the best way to learn it? What are the important details to consider while you are telling a story? This book will talk precisely of all this and also of the pleasure to tell and to listen to a story. Telling a story is an activity that belongs specifically to human beings, no other animal does that. Telling stories is part of our genetic background: we can't avoid it. Telling a story and listening to it thrills us, guides our comprehension of the world around us. This book offers a fascinating, practical and sometimes even erudite journey to learn how to tell stories.

SEMILLAS. UN PEQUEÑO GRAN VIAJE SEEDS. A LITTLE BIG TRIP

JOSÉ RAMÓN ALONSO, text

MARCO PASCHETTA, illustrations

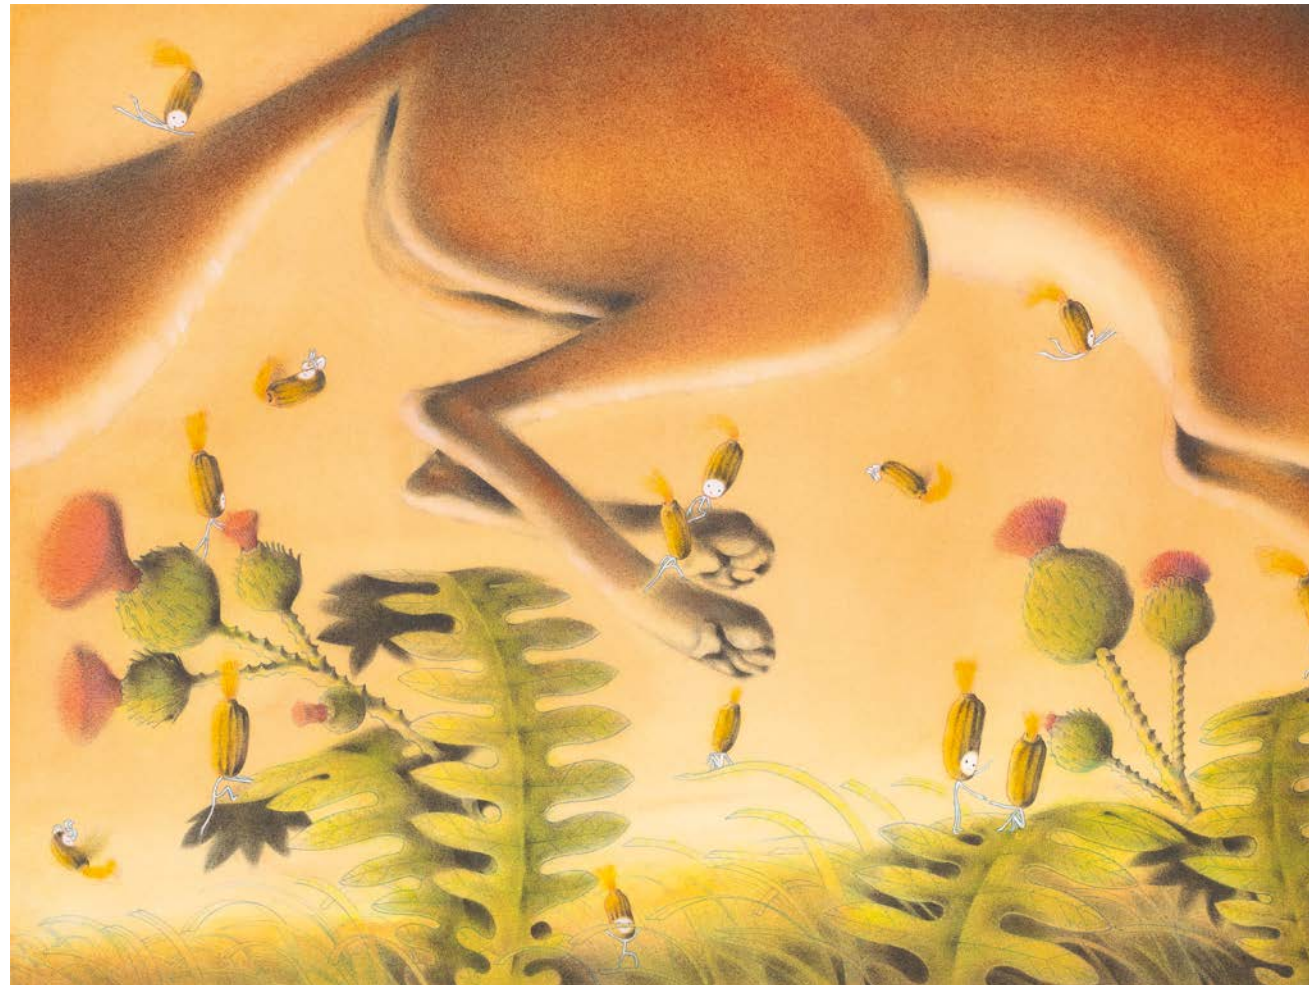

Seeds are prodigious capsules, a surprising natural structure. In this book you will discover all their secrets. Seeds are humble and strong. They can be as small as dust or as big as soccer ball. They can wait hundreds of years until the right time to germinate comes. This is the reason why they start long travels, crossing seas, flying, or holding on to our socks until they find a suitable place. Seeds are the best tool that humanity has in order to stop hunger and they also provide us with cotton, oils, varnishes, and many other things. There's a lot we can learn by observing seeds, their patience, and their persistence. Join them in their journey to life!

DIEZ GUSANITOS DUERMEN TEN LITTLE WORMS GO TO SLEEP

MARTA COMÍN, text and illustrations

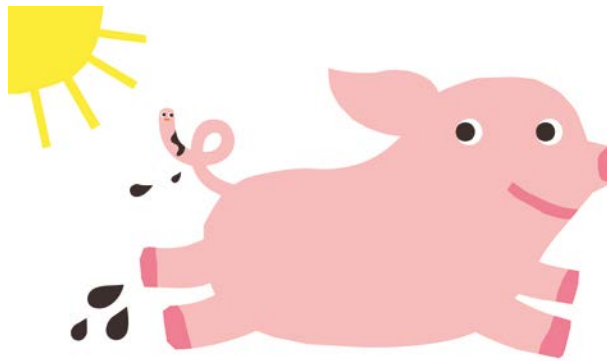

It's time to go to sleep, embraced by their mother, ten little worms dream their dreams. Each little worm has a different colour and a different character: one is shy, another one is curious; there's the brave one, and the easily scared one; one loves to make jokes, and the red one falls in love easily. The reader of this book will get to know these little 10 worms, who are like everyone of us. You will have fun looking for the shape that each worm has taken in each spread, you will be introduced to the name of colours, and will also get to play transforming your fingers into little worms, using the 4 cards at the end of the book.

EL CIELO IMAGINADO ENVISIONING THE SKY

PABLO A. ALONSO, text
ANA SUÁREZ, illustrations

Stars are those shining dots that we see in the sky each night. In fact they are gigantic burning objects, made out of gas, that lay millions of kilometres apart. But stars can also be thousands of eyes looking at us, dancers in a theatre or windows to peek into other worlds. It only depends on the way you envision your sky. After a brief introduction on the concept of constellations as we normally know them, this book presents the interpretations that different cultures all over the world, all over history have given of the night sky, the wonderful show that is played each night in our world. You will hear what Eskimos, Navajos, Kazakhstanis and so on.

¡MALACATÚ!

MARÍA PASCUAL DE LA TORRE,

text and illustrations

When it's time to wash your teeth, the kitchen becomes the scenario of a tremendous duel between mother and son. A duel fought using enchantments. None, not even the house cat, will escape the magic that surrounds the place. Each enchantment has its own meaning, just like when the mother turns the boy into a pig, or the boy turns his mother into a mumbling coffee pot, or into a cage...

The words that appear in this beautiful book are the spells created by the mother and son. Meanwhile, the reader will have to follow the story looking carefully at the images in order to see what every toy in the house is doing.

SUBEN Y BAJAN GOING UP AND DOWN MARTA COMÍN

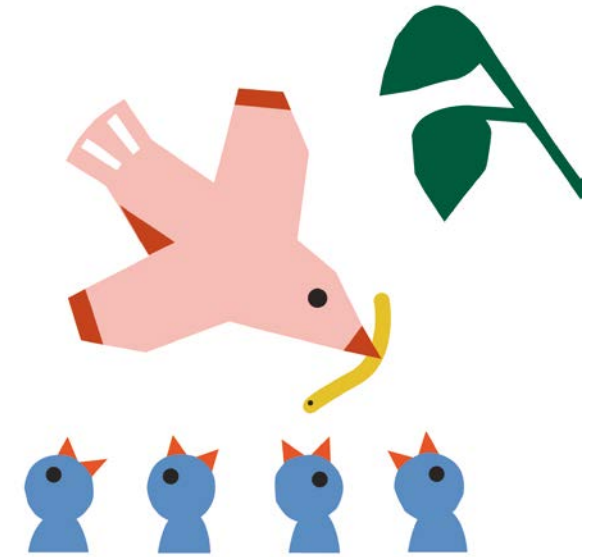

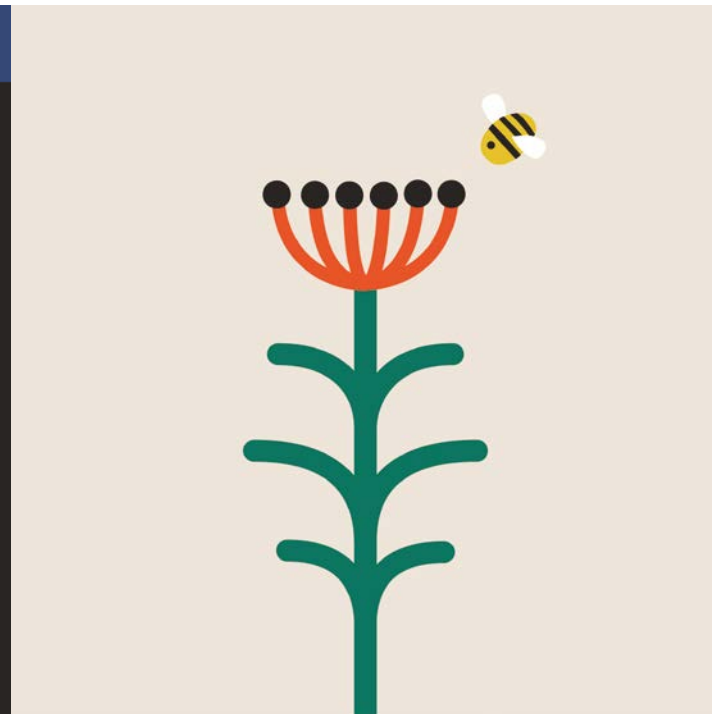

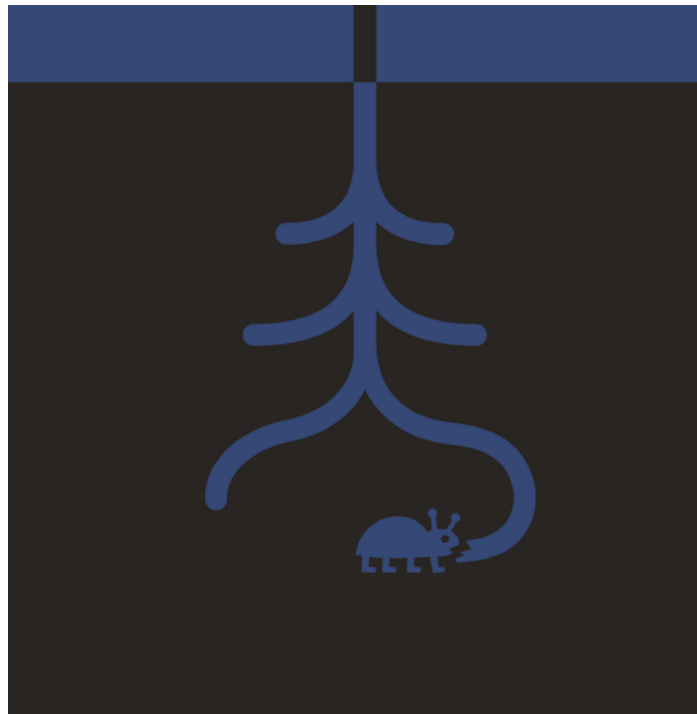

Some things always go down; others always move upwards. But there are also things that sometimes go up, and sometimes go down. A few times you can understand why, but not always. What kind of relationship develops between the concepts of going up and down? Can you go down without going up and vice versa? Creating beautiful and metaphorical images, the author of this book explores the principle of duality. A little book to discover a new concept, a book that will surprise you talking about simple everyday facts, those facts one rarely thinks about.
